Awaiting Opinion on Redistricting, Observers Wonder: 'What Now?'

BY BEN PRESENT

Of the Legal Staff

The last time the Pennsylvania Supreme Court had to navigate territory as uncharted as that which it faces now — following the unprecedented decision last week to reject the state Legislative Reapportionment Commission's House and Senate maps — it took four months for the justices to issue an opinion.

That was in 1972, after revisions to the state constitution in 1968 put the process of redrawing legislative lines into the hands of a government commission, as the court started a 40-year trend of upholding the commission's plans. The current Supreme Court bucked that trend last Wednesday in a 4-3 per curiam order narrowly remanding the redistricting process to the commission and heeding the call of several citizens, a united Senate Democratic caucus, and a handful of

Judge Poised to Rule on 'Bad Acts' Evidence in Priest Sex-Abuse Case

BY AMARIS ELLIOTT-ENGEL

Of the Legal Staff

Prosecutors want to submit evidence of about 30 instances of Catholic priests who were reported to have committed sexual abuse or other improprieties into the unprecedented trial of a high-ranking church official in charge of human resources for priests in the Archdiocese of Philadelphia.

But a Philadelphia judge who must decide if that evidence has probative value in the trial of Monsignor William Lynn — on the charges he endangered the welfare of two young men who were allegedly abused by priests Lynn oversaw as secretary for clergy — would be hard-pressed "to find the needle [in the haystack] that only has to do with defendant Lynn," one of Lynn's defense attorneys, Thomas Bergstrom of Buchanan Ingersoll & Rooney, argued Monday.

Philadelphia Common Pleas Court Judge M. Teresa Sarmina said at the close of the hearing that she will rule by Feb. 6 on what evidence of "bad acts" or acts other than those with which Lynn is charged can be admitted into his trial. Under Pennsylvania law, the probative value of the evidence must outweigh its potential for prejudicing the defendants.

Sarmina once again ruled that former archdiocese Cardinal Anthony J. Bevilacqua is competent.

Bergstrom and his co-counsel, Jeffrey M. Lindy of Lindy & Tauber, argued that Bevilacqua should be deemed incompetent because, Bergstrom said, the retired cardinal does not remember his testimony before the first Philadelphia grand jury looking into sexual abuse by priests. If Bevilacqua can't testify in person, Lynn will be denied his right to confrontation by the inclusion of Bevilacqua's grand jury testimony or his

Western Pa. Could Become Global Energy Power, Lawyers Say

BY ZACK NEEDLES

Of the Legal Staff

As Western Pennsylvania continues to attract oil and gas companies, as well as attorneys and law firms from far and wide, some lawyers say the region is emerging as a major player in the global energy industry whose importance and influence could last well beyond the life span of the Marcellus and Utica shale plays.

THE BIG PLAY THE MARCELLUS SHALE AND THE LAW

Energy lawyer Michael P. Joy, who recently joined Reed Smith in Pittsburgh as a partner in its energy and natural resources group from his boutique law firm Biltekoff & Joy in Buffalo, N.Y., said he decided to move with his wife and five children to Western Pennsylvania because he wanted to be near what he said is becoming "one of the three or four dominant energy centers" in the United States.

3rd Circuit Upholds $3 Mil. Verdict in Age Discrimination Case

BY GINA PASSARELLA

Of the Legal Staff

The 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld a multimillion-dollar age discrimination verdict and opened the door for awarding the two scientists who won the verdict additional money in prejudgment interest and recognition for negative tax consequences, finding the district court abused its discretion on denying those requests.

The verdict in Marcus v. PQ Corp. has seen its ups and downs. A federal jury in 2009 awarded Bonnie Marcus and Roman Wypart a combined total of $6.2 million after their employer, PQ Corp., targeted older workers in a round of layoffs in 2005.

Marcus was awarded more than $667,000 in backpay; more than $670,000 in front pay; and $1.5 million in compensatory damages for emotional distress. After the backpay award was doubled, Marcus' total award was to be more than $3.5 million.

Wypart was awarded nearly $190,000 in backpay; more than $375,000 in front pay; and $2 million in compensatory damages for emotional distress, for a total award of more than $2.7 million after the doubling of the backpay award.

On post-trial motions, the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania denied the plaintiffs' request for prejudgment interest and an accounting for negative tax for Wypart, according to the 3rd Circuit opinion by Judge Thomas M. Hardiman.

Scott B. Goldshaw of Salmanson Goldshaw, who represented the plaintiffs, said the verdict stood after that at around $2.9 million, which doesn't include post-judgment interest. It is that figure the 3rd Circuit panel has now upheld after denying PQ's appeal of the trial court's denial of its request for a new trial or judgment as a matter of law.

The 3rd Circuit has also remanded the case back to the trial court to reconsider the awarding of prejudgment interest and additional money to cover negative tax consequences, finding the court abused its discretion in denying those requests by Wypart and Marcus.

As to their argument for a new trial or judgment as a matter of law, PQ took issue with the jury instructions, the sufficiency of the evidence and the impartiality of the jury. Hardiman, joined by Judge Maryanne Trump Barry and Senior Judge Franklin S.

Van Antwerpen, struck down each of the company's arguments. Hardiman said the jury instructions were clear as to put the jurors on notice that PQ could only be found liable if its firing decisions would not have happened "but for" the plaintiffs' ages. The trial judge also made it clear, Hardiman said, that PQ had the right to make business decisions and fire its employees whenever it wanted to as long as it was not based on age.

"This language sufficed to inform the jury that it could not hold PQ liable simply because it disagreed with PQ's decision to fire plaintiffs," Hardiman wrote.

The court also denied PQ Corp.'s argument that the evidence did not support the verdict. "We are unpersuaded because plaintiffs introduced considerable evidence from which the jury could infer discrimination," Hardiman said.

He said the plaintiffs showed how PQ's proffered reason for the terminations changed over time. Marcus and Wypart introduced evidence that, of the people in the company with the same position as them, only those 55 or older were fired. Marcus also testified that her boss told her the terminations would focus on older employees, Hardiman said.

As to Wypart and Marcus' cross-appeals, Hardiman said the court favors the awarding of prejudgment interest because it usually serves to make the plaintiffs whole. It is an abuse of discretion, he said, when a district court deviates from that policy without an explanation.

There is no presumption in favor of awarding damages for negative tax consequences, Hardiman said. He said that is done based on the facts of each case.

The only reason the district court cited for denying prejudgment interest in the case was that the liquidated damages awarded to Marcus and Wypart under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act were sufficient to compensate them.

"Yet we have held the prejudgment interest may be awarded in an ADEA case involving a willful violation, reasoning that the punitive award of liquidated damages serves a different purpose than, and therefore does not preclude, the compensatory award of prejudgment interest," Hardiman said. "Thus, although the district court did not explicitly hold that it could not award prejudgment interest, it failed to recognize the presumption in favor of prejudgment interest and offer a valid reason for departing from it."

Similarly, because the district court did not acknowledge the difference between punitive and compensatory goals when analyzing the award of damages for negative tax consequences, that decision was also an abuse of discretion.

Hardiman vacated the trial judge's order denying the incorporation of prejudgment interest and to account for negative tax

Scholar Says High Court Lacks Public Interaction

BY TONY MAURO

The National Law Journal

The Supreme Court is guilty of a broad “failure to communicate” to the public it serves, law dean and constitutional scholar Erwin Chemerinsky said Friday.

And this failure extends beyond the court’s stubborn resistance to allowing camera coverage of its oral arguments. At almost every point of its decision-making process, according to Chemerinsky, the high court should be doing more to inform the public about what it does.

Chemerinsky, founding dean of the University of California, Irvine School of Law, was the keynote speaker at a symposium on the court, the press and the public at Brigham Young University’s J. Reuben Clark Law School. Scholars and journalists spoke on different aspects of the interaction — or lack thereof — between the Supreme Court and the public.

The conference coincided with renewed calls for the court to allow cameras in, this time for the upcoming oral argument on the constitutionality of the Affordable Care Act. Several requests for broadcast access are pending before the justices.

“People should be able to watch their government in action, and [the Supreme Court] is a crucial institution of government,” said Chemerinsky, who added that he thinks a First Amendment argument in favor of broadcast access could be made.

Chemerinsky said many members of the public think that the fate of the health care reform law will turn on issues of individual liberty, rather than on the Constitution’s

Commerce Clause. Airing the oral arguments in late March would clear up that misunderstanding, Chemerinsky said, and would be a “tremendous civic education.”

The public would see nine “exceptionally intelligent” justices working hard to get the right answer, he said, asserting that televised oral argument would enhance, not diminish, the court’s stature with the public. It might even encourage “better behavior,” Chemerinsky said. “Justice Thomas might ask some questions.”

Chemerinsky did not focus only on the long-running debate over cameras at oral argument, highlighting other deficiencies in its procedures. The court has pointed with pride to advances in this area, including its website, where decisions and oral argument transcripts are posted quickly. But Chemerinsky said much more is needed for the court to explain itself better to litigants and to the public, in the interest of enhancing the court’s legitimacy and public understanding.

For example, he said the court owes litigants as well as the public some explanation why it has denied review in pending petitions. The “vast majority” of petitioners, even some that pose a circuit conflict, are denied review without learning why. That, he said, is an “extremely important failure to communicate.”

The court could also be doing more to inform the public when it releases opinions, Chemerinsky said. It should be telling in advance which decisions it will be releasing — as courts in California and Canada do — to assist the press and commentators in getting ready to write about its decisions. The justices should also spread out the release of opinions “to allow the press to accurately report” on them, he added.

And to increase understanding of sometimes “dense and hard to follow” decisions and syllabi, Chemerinsky said the court should hire a “clear writer” who would boil each decision down to a single paragraph that would be released along with the ruling.

Justices should also strive to make their opinions more concise, he said. There is a “perfect inverse correlation,” Chemerinsky said, between the decrease in the number of cases the court decides with opinions and the increase in the length of those opinions.

AG Stresses Justice in Residential Mortgage Securities Market

BY MIKE SCARCELLA

The National Law Journal

The financial fraud group that is investigating the market for residential mortgage-backed securities has already issued civil subpoenas to 11 financial institutions, Attorney General Eric Holder Jr. said Friday in formally announcing the team of lawyers and federal agents.

Holder and top Obama administration officials, speaking Friday with reporters at the Justice Department, declined to discuss the details of the pending investigations. The focus of the group is on the organization and securitization of home loans, not loan servicing.

Holder said the working group, which President Obama noted in his State of the Union speech Jan. 24, will include 55 U.S. Justice Department attorneys, in addition to resources from several state attorneys general and law enforcement agencies such as the FBI.

The group, Holder said, will identify, investigate and prosecute instances of wrongdoing in the packaging and sale of residential mortgage-backed securities.

“I am confident that this new effort will improve our ability to ensure justice for victims, help restore faith in our financial markets and institutions and allow us to answer the call that President Obama issued earlier this week in his State of the Union address,” Holder said in a statement Friday.

Holder and Robert Khuzami, the enforcement director at the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, said that not every failure was a violation of the law. “We also have learned that behavior that is reckless or unethical is not criminal,” Holder said.

The officials fended off skepticism that the working group is getting off the ground too late in the Obama administration and that its work is not new at all. The Obama administration put together a Financial Fraud Enforcement Task Force in November 2009.

“The notion that there has been inactivity over the course of the last three years is belied by a troublesome little something called facts,” Holder said. “We have been doing a great deal. I am confident that with this new structure that we are putting in place today our efforts will be enhanced.”

Holder said, “The reality is that we’ve done a substantial amount.” The attorney general said the working group is targeting a specific financial fraud crime that has caused “great harm” to the economy.

“We are bound and determined and will hold people accountable in this sector,” Holder said.

Khuzami also said that investigations of components of the housing market have been ongoing for some time. The new working group, he said, will give investigators greater resources and a more streamlined ability to share information with state and federal officials.

“These families deserve justice. They deserve relief,” Housing and Urban Development Secretary Shaun Donovan told reporters Friday.

As payments are made to investors for accountability, Donovan said, “we need to make sure at the same time ... that there is also relief that happens for the homeowners within those securities.” He said it would be a “tragedy” if only investors benefit.

The redoubled effort to investigate the market, Donovan said, is unlikely to harm ongoing settlement negotiations with financial institutions over home loan servicing. Donovan said problems over the servicing of loans compounded, but did not create, the inflation of the housing market bubble.

“We would not be standing here today if we weren’t absolutely confident that the releases that are being contemplated were quite

Group Sues EPA To Stop Nanosilver Use in Textiles

BY JENNA GREENE

The National Law Journal

In a bid to get anti-microbial nanosilver used in clothing, baby blankets and other textiles off the market, the Natural Resources Defense Council filed suit Jan. 26 against the Environmental Protection Agency.

The group says that nanosilver has been inadequately tested and could have potentially dangerous effects on health and the environment. The EPA in December conditionally approved the use of nanosilver made by HeiQ Materials as a textile preservative for the next four years, but is requiring additional safety data.

The suit, filed in the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, asks the court to set aside the EPA’s order. The Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act allows certain challenges to agency orders to be brought at the circuit court level.

The “EPA gave this company a four-year free pass to sell an inadequately tested product,” said Mae Wu, program attorney in the NRDC’s health program, in a news release. The “EPA’s approval of nanosilver is just the most recent example in a long line of decisions that treats humans and our environment as guinea pigs.”

The NRDC argues that while silver (which is highly toxic) has been used in pesticides for years, nanosilver is different because of its incredibly tiny size, which allows it to penetrate organs and tissues in the body that larger forms of silver cannot reach, like the brain, lung and testes. The group wants more tests before nanosilver-treated products can be sold.

The NRDC noted that while HeiQ came to the EPA to have its product registered, other nanosilver manufacturers have not. “The unregulated and untested use of nanosilver in such products as food storage containers and hair dryers continues to grow, despite potential dangerous health effects,” NRDC senior scientist Jennifer Sass wrote in a blog.

HeiQ’s product presents “no unreasonable adverse harm to humans and the environment,” wrote its counsel, James Votaw, then a partner at Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale & Dorr and now counsel to Manatt Phelps & Phillips, in documents filed with the EPA. The product has low toxicity, and the particles are embedded within a solid silica matrix “so there is essentially no release of free particles of silver.”

Exposure to any silver ions that might be released when fabric is washed, he continued, is “similar to, or less than, those from currently registered products” using silver. “The product does not generate any unique concerns different than for other sources of silver ions.”

In comments filed with the EPA, BASF Corp., which makes several pesticides containing silver, wondered why the EPA considered nanosilver to be something new. “Silver has been an active ingredient in

When Can You Seek to Vacate an Arbitration Award?

Editor's note: This article discusses a hypothetical scenario.

ADR

BY CHARLES F. FORER

“Do you ever do anything right when it comes to alternative dispute resolution? How do you keep attracting clients if all you do is make mistakes?”

Bob brushes these questions off. As readers of this column know, he has made some mistakes, but he is convinced that he has what it takes to be an outstanding ADR practitioner. One strength: He keeps up on recent legal developments so he knows exactly what is happening on the ADR front.

Take his recent arbitration victory. After a three-day hearing, the arbitrator entered an award in favor of Bob's client for everything that Bob's client sought. Bob still tingles with the excitement of receiving the news.

Bob's sense that his client would prevail had been building throughout the proceeding. It did not hurt that Bob recently had represented the arbitrator in a confidential legal matter. Nor did it hurt that the arbitrator was pleased with Bob's legal work.

It was odd that the arbitration agreement did not provide the parties with a meaningful opportunity to determine whether there were any disqualifying conflicts of interest, such as Bob's prior representation of the arbitrator. As Bob repeatedly told himself, however, the arbitration agreement was controlling, and it did not require the parties or their lawyers to disclose whether they ever previously had a professional or social relationship with the arbitrator. Besides, Bob represented the arbitrator more than a year ago and the matter was all over.

Thirty days after receiving the good news, Bob sought to confirm the arbitration award. The other side did not object. The award became a judgment. It was now time for judgment-execution proceedings. Bob finally could satisfy his client's constant requests for “the money that I am owed.”

Except for one thing. Three months later, the other side filed a petition to vacate the arbitration award. Grounds: “The award was predicated upon corruption and fraud because neither Bob nor the arbitrator disclosed their prior attorney-client relationship. Consequently, the arbitrator was biased, the entire proceeding was tainted, and the award must be vacated.”

Bob was undaunted. He recently had read a 2011 opinion from a Connecticut appellate court —

Travelers Home & Marine Insurance Co. v. Kravitz. The court there in no uncertain terms said that a party must move to vacate an arbitration award within 30 days from notice of the award. Allowing parties to challenge an arbitration award more than 30 days after entry would frustrate the “legislative purpose of facilitating the expedient resolution of private disputes.”

Bob's arbitration was in Pennsylvania and so the Pennsylvania Uniform Arbitration Act controlled. The name of the act may suggest standard and consistent treatment of procedures, including jurisdictional time-lines, from state to state. However, procedural rules governing arbitration proceedings are anything but uniform across the country.

Bob found Snyder v. Cross, where the Pennsylvania Superior Court said that “it has been consistently held that any challenge to an arbitration award must be made in an appeal to the Court of Common Pleas within 30 days of the date of the award.” Bob concluded that Pennsylvania and Connecticut have a similar ironclad 30-day rule.

Relying on the “any challenge” language in Snyder and the let's-not-frustrate-the-purpose-of-arbitration language from

Kravitz, Bob gleefully responded to the vacatur petition. Demonstrating his disdain for his adversary's failure to follow the applicable 30-day appeal period and to honor the purpose of arbitration, Bob's response cited Snyder and more recent Pennsylvania cases that reiterate that you have only 30 days to challenge an arbitration award. Bob concluded: “If my adversary knew the law, he would not be putting the court or me through this needless exercise that undermines the litigation matters, started his career as an oil exploration geologist and worked at Amoco Corp. before finishing law school and starting his own law firm.

Soon after, around 2007, shale exploration began to heat up, he said.

But while New York sits atop a large portion of the Marcellus Shale, Joy said the state has effectively shut down the oil and gas industry within its borders while it re-evaluates its regulatory scheme, so he set his sights on Western Pennsylvania.

“I wanted to be a part of what's happening here,” he said.

What's happening in the region, he said, is something of a revolution in the energy industry, where new ideas and techniques for the development and production of unconventional natural gas — specifically hydrofracturing — along with new philosophies toward environmental regulation are being formulated.

These concepts have the potential to change how other countries, from the United Kingdom to Germany and Poland to South Africa and western Australia, approach oil and gas extraction, he said. In fact, according to Joy, the science and philosophies of unconventional natural gas extraction currently being cultivated and put into practice in the Appalachian region are all being developed, in part, to be demonstrated to the global community.

As a result, he said, Pittsburgh is on its way to becoming an energy epicenter akin to industry meccas like Houston and Calgary, Alberta.

One only needs to look at the influx of energy companies that have put down roots in Western Pennsylvania over the past few years to understand the region's significance to the industry, Joy said.

Because drilling operations tend to be mobile, companies don't necessarily need to set up shop where projects are taking place, he explained, but drillers appear to have made a clear, long-term commitment to Western Pennsylvania by opening offices there.

According to Joy, the regional market has become “so important and so influential,” drillers have decided it's worth it to them to establish a physical presence.

“Pittsburgh is the Silicon Valley of the oil and gas industry,” Joy said.

Joy predicted that, as the region continues to emerge as a hub of innovation and expertise in energy, the legal community in the region will likely also gain a reputation as an authority on energy and environmental law.

“No longer will companies be looking back to their Texas counsel with a lawyer in Pittsburgh serving as local counsel,” he said. Nicolle R. Snyder Bagnell, a partner at Reed Smith and team leader of the oil and natural gas team of the firm's new energy and natural resources group, said many of the firm's energy attorneys have done oil and gas work their whole careers and now have “this great, unique opportunity where producers are so excited by Pennsylvania and Ohio and the whole Appalachian region.”

The Changing Face of Long-Term Care Insurance Policies

BY DAVID B. BRUCKMAN AND ALAN MANDELOFF

Special to the Legal

Long-term care insurance (LTCI), which covers services that are not provided under Medicare or private health insurance, is sold by insurance companies to provide for the cost of long-term (custodial/non-skilled) care. Policies can be sold individually or for groups. Very common are policies that insure spouses. Policies can also be owned by a third-party, such as a trust or business.

While the need for LTCI is increasing, the options for consumers are dwindling. During the past several years, numerous insurance companies have either ceased offering LTCI or have raised premiums significantly. Nevertheless, there remain several important considerations for the purchase of LTCI. Perhaps the most significant is whether to purchase a standalone LTCI contract or to buy a low death benefit universal life insurance policy that has a long-term care rider.

Individuals who require long-term care are unable to perform the basic activities of daily living (ADLs), such as dressing, bathing, eating, transferring (getting in and out of bed or a chair) and walking.

POLICY FEATURES AND OPTIONS

LTCI generally covers home care, assisted living, adult daycare, respite, hospice, and nursing home and dementia facilities. Policies come in a variety of forms with many options and riders. The general steps in designing an LTCI policy are as follows:

- Choose the daily benefit, which typically ranges from $100 to $400. The greater the daily benefit, the higher the premium.
- Decide on the duration of the daily benefit. The duration (of a policy) can be anywhere from one year to lifetime coverage (we generally recommend at least a five-year benefit period). Like the daily benefit, the longer the duration, the more expensive the policy.

- Decide on the elimination period, which typically ranges from 0 days to 180 days. During this time the insured pays for expenses out of pocket. If the insured elects the shortest elimination period, the premium will be greater.

- Understand that age and health of the insured are the most significant factors to consider in determining the cost of coverage. Premiums for people over the age of 70 are often cost prohibitive.

RIDERS

A typical standalone LTCI policy can be customized to appropriately cover the needs of the purchaser. Some of the more popular riders are home health care, shared benefit, inflation protection waiver of premium and return of premium.

- Home health care riders permit the insured to bring care into his or her residence when home health care is not covered in the base policy. We at Citrin Cooperman Wealth Management highly recommend home health care riders for our clients seeking LTCI.
- Shared benefit riders provide the insured with the ability to extend coverage if both spouses are covered. These riders allow one spouse to draw from the other's policy if benefits are exhausted. This coverage is less expensive than purchasing two separate policies. The downside is that one spouse's claims can significantly reduce the overall joint benefit, thereby creating a risk of being underinsured if both spouses require care.

- Inflation protection riders help to ensure that an individual's LTCI payments keep pace with the escalating costs of care. This feature is so important that insurance regulators, in some states, require any purchaser of an LTCI policy to sign a special form indicating that they are rejecting the inflation rider. We generally recommend this rider where the insured is younger than 60 and will consider it where the insured is between the ages of 60 and 65. We do not recommend inflation protection riders for those over the age of 70.

- Waiver of premium riders provide policy continuance without further premium payments once the insured has filed a claim. When the specified conditions no longer deposition testimony in the trial, Bergstrom said.

Prosecutor Patrick Blessington of the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office said that Bevilacqua said in a recent deposition that he answered questions in the first grand jury to the best of his knowledge and that Bevilacqua said it was only after the 2005 grand jury that he realized his memory was starting to slip.

On the issue of the "bad acts" evidence, Bergstrom also argued that only one of the several alleged victims who Lynn's co-defendant, the Rev. Edward Avery, allegedly sexually abused had made a report to the archdiocese before Lynn's time as secretary of clergy from 1992 to 2004 was over. Bergstrom also argued that some of the instances cited by prosecutors occurred in the 1960s, 1970s and 1980s — and even as far back as the 1940s — and at a time before Lynn was ordained.

Sarmina will not find a case in Pennsylvania that falls on the same four corners as the prosecution of Lynn because it is unprecedented to charge a church official in the church hierarchy with endangering the welfare of a child, Blessington said.

But all the past instances cited by prosecutors are probative because they show a common plan by Lynn and other church officials to keep abusive priests that they knew or should have known could abuse again in ministry, Blessington said.

The recitation of all of the cases would let the jury understand the "natural history of the case" and have the "opportunity to understand what happened, to be able to understand the whole picture," Blessington said.

The jury needs to understand that Lynn was "implementing a policy that is criminal," Blessington said.

Bergstrom also made a motion for the judge to preclude prosecutors from referring to an overarching conspiracy by the archdiocese to cover up priests' sexual abuse. Bergstrom said the information charging his client alleges that he was in a conspiracy with his two co-defendants and other unnamed fellow church officials to endanger the welfare of the two alleged victims.

Prosecutor Mark Cipoletti argued that situations in which men reported that Avery sexually abused them as very young teenagers but for which Avery is not facing criminal charges in the upcoming trial should be admitted into the case.

Avery allegedly selected boys around the age of 13 who were altar boys and involved with church extracurriculars, Cipoletti said.

The alleged history of Avery's sexual abuse shows how he needed "to plan and to prepare" to commit crimes for which he needed his alleged victims' acquiescence and that Avery became more sophisticated and more brazen with his abuse, including allegedly abusing boys in his church sacristy and progressing from fondling genitals to oral and anal sex, Cipoletti said.

Avery's attorney, Michael Wallace, said the admission of all of the cases that prosecutors want to submit would sweep up his client in prejudicial evidence that has no relation to his own case.

Cipoletti argued that church documents show that it was four months after Lynn received a report that a young man of an undetermined age was living with co-defendant the Rev. James Brennan before he sent a colleague to "figure out what was going on, to put a name" to the young man.

Brennan's attorney, William J. Brennan, said that the only direct evidence against James Brennan is the testimony of the alleged victim, Mark Bukowski.

The complaint made to the archdiocese that James Brennan was living with a young man in his rectory and a complaint made that he was wrestling with a young man behind closed doors connoted more that the priest was a "noisy pain in the ass" than that he was committing sexual abuse or other improprieties, William Brennan said.

Bukowski, when needing to complete community service, actively sought out James Brennan at the parish he was assigned to in Feasterville, Bucks County, William Brennan said.

"If their theory is that there's a grooming process, a safe harbor and a soft landing," William Brennan asked, why did Bukowski seek out his client?

would-be separated boroughs, all of which appealed the commission's "final" plan from December.

The order, while absent analysis, laid out that those running for elected office in Pennsylvania should proceed with the 203 House and 50 Senatorial districts that have been in place for the last decade, which, as one of the commission's attorneys pointed out last week, have changed significantly since their adoption. How long the old districts would govern elections was a point of scrutiny in Pennsylvania's legal and political circles after the court's surprise decision.

While some political observers said keeping the outdated districts presented constitutional problems to the state's elections, they added there didn't seem to be much of an alternative.

"It's going to be incredibly difficult to compress everything within the time frame to conduct the primary election," said election law attorney Gregory Harvey, of Montgomery McCracken Walker & Rhoads.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Dominic Pileggi, R-Delaware, released a statement Monday saying using the 2001 House and Senate lines would be "clearly unconstitutional."

Holding those lines over for the upcoming elections, Pileggi said, would result in a population difference among Senate districts of nearly 30 percent. In the house, that deviation would be more than 40 percent.

"That is exactly what the Supreme Court found violates our Constitution's Equal Protection Clause, because voters in smaller districts would have more influence over elections — and, as a result, more influence over policy decisions — than voters in larger districts," Pileggi said. "We are anxious to read the court's opinion as soon as possible, as is every Pennsylvanian. The Legislative Reapportionment Commission will be able to respond to the court's opinion in a timely manner, ensuring that every Pennsylvanian's vote in the 2012 election has equal value."

And an opinion instructing the commission was expected this week, but it was unclear how quickly the commission could respond in order to affect the elections this year. The Supreme Court retained jurisdiction over the matter in its Jan. 25 order and, until the full opinion comes out, it was apparent the commission would be in a holding pattern.

Cliff Levine, who represented the Senate Democrats on appeal, told The Legal that the commission could "absolutely not" start drafting a new plan until the court released its opinion.

Levine also agreed the full process of getting district lines approved could take a while, possibly even past the state's April 24 primary elections. Levine pointed to the complicated, novel issues before the court, the time frame for filing concurring and dissenting opinions, and the push for some type of consensus as factors that could slow the process.

"Unless there is clear uniformity then I would expect there would be some analysis and maybe some give-and-take to see if they can craft a unanimous decision for guidance," Levine said.

But Art Heinz, a spokesman for the Administrative Offices of Pennsylvania Courts, said the target of releasing an opinion this week has remained an attainable one.

In a set of appeals that had been widely viewed as a political battle, it was Chief Justice Ronald D. Castille, a Republican, who broke party lines last week. Castille, along with Justices Max Baer, Debra Todd and Seamus P. McCaffery, the court's Democrats, supported remand.

Justice Thomas G. Saylor, who in 2001 wrote a concurring opinion in which he said the court should "not occupy an unduly passive role" in evaluating redistricting appeals, wrote for the dissenting justices.

Saylor said the challenges to the districts did not persuade him that the 2011 districts were contrary to the law.

"Although I am receptive to the concern that past decisions of the court may suggest an unnecessarily stringent approach to equalization of population as between voting districts, I believe this could be addressed via prospective guidance from the court," Saylor said.

Justice J. Michael Eakin joined Saylor along with fellow Republican Justice Joan Orié Melvin, who faced public calls for recusal heading into last week's arguments because of her relationship with, and the state's allegations against, her sister, Sen. Jane Orié, R-McCandless.

While Harvey said there would be several constitutional problems associated with proceeding under the old districts, he conceded it would be unlikely the commission and court could get new districts in place in time for the primaries.

"But I see real difficulty in going forward pesticide products since the 1970s,” wrote Marie Paquette, senior product regulations specialist. “It is unclear as to why the agency would list silver as a new active ingredient.”

The Dow Chemical Co. echoed the question.

“Silver is not a new active ingredient, and it is unclear why EPA has chosen to identify this submission as containing a new active,” wrote Abigail Trueblood, senior regulatory specialist.

To the NRDC and other groups that filed comments opposing EPA approval, it’s not so simple.

“There are differences between biological and environmental behavior between conventional silver and some intentionally produced nanosilver particles, at least in laboratory studies,” wrote Jo Anne Shatkin, managing director of CLF Ventures Inc., an affiliate of the Conservation Law Foundation. “These differences warrant further investigation.” The group also asked the EPA to require labeling of all fabrics containing nanosilver.

The California Department of Pesticide Regulation also urged caution. “The data gaps regarding products containing nanosilver are significant,” wrote Marylou Verder-Carlos, assistant director of the Pesticide Programs Division. “It is our position that the U.S. EPA should wait for the additional data to be developed before proceeding with the conditional registration.”

to draw correlations between the justices’ personal experiences and their views on the media.

Conference host and Brigham Young professor RonNell Andersen Jones, formerly a clerk to Justice Sandra Day O’Connor, explored the seeming inconsistency between the court’s “overwhelmingly press-protective” decisions and its “access-stingy” policies relating to its own work. One explanation, she said, is that the court can exercise “a colossal amount of control over their operations.”

Boston College Law School professor Mary-Rose Papandrea spoke about the justices’ “quite cautious” approach to new technology in their decisions and in their personal lives. She said “my beloved boss” Justice David Souter, for whom she clerked, recently said — perhaps jokingly — that he had tried to use an iPad, but hid it in a closet because he could not figure out how to turn it off.

narrow, focused on the conduct that was actually investigated, focused on the conduct that we have found significant problems with,” Donovan said. “Those releases are narrow enough to allow us to go forward aggressively with what we are describing today.”

Donovan also said it would be a “grave injustice” to have potentially hundreds of billions paid to private investors, pension funds and others but not have homeowners who held the loans made whole. He said he is hopeful the working group will provide a template not only for accountability but for “real relief” for homeowners.

New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman, a co-chair of the group, said he is working closely with state attorneys general Martha Coakley of Massachusetts, Nevada’s Catherine Cortez Masto and Beau Biden of Delaware.

Conversations began months ago about the possibility of joining state and federal forces. “It didn’t take long for us to realize this was the only way we were really going to restore the public’s confidence in the financial services industry, which has been badly shaken,” Schneiderman said.

Schneiderman predicted actions in the coming days and weeks that he said will mark just how aggressive the new group is digging in to hold accountable financial institutions.

“I think there is a recognition that you have to have accountability,” Schneiderman said. Regarding the financial services industry, he said: “To put it bluntly, we know what they did. They know what they did. They know we know what they did.”

Federal rules of criminal procedure and confidentiality agreements will shape the extent to which state and federal prosecutors are able to share information with each other. “We are looking to share everything we can share,” Schneiderman said.

Holder said prosecutors can structure the sharing of information in a way that does not run afoul of the federal rule that mandates secrecy of grand jury investigations.

salutary function of arbitration.”

Two weeks later, Bob was anything but joyful when he received the court’s order that granted the petition and vacated the arbitration award as the result of Bob’s concealed relationship with the arbitrator.

Where did Bob go wrong? Under Pennsylvania law, does a challenger ever have more than 30 days to seek to vacate an arbitration award?

According to the trial court’s opinion that accompanied the order granting Bob’s adversary’s petition, Section 7314 of the Pennsylvania Uniform Arbitration Act states that a party can seek vacatur, not only within 30 days of receipt of the arbitration award, but also within 30 days after the party knows or should know of the grounds supporting the vacatur petition: “An application under this section shall be made within 30 days after delivery of a copy of the award to the applicant, except that, if predicated upon corruption, fraud, misconduct or other improper means, it shall be made within 30 days after such grounds are known or should have been known to the applicant.”

By overlooking Section 7314, the trial court said, Bob failed to confront the fundamental issues:

- When did his adversary learn about Bob’s prior attorney-client relationship with the arbitrator?

- When should his adversary have learned about the prior relationship?

- Did his adversary act within 30 days of learning those facts?

So much for the “any challenge” language in Snyder — at least according to the trial court.

Citing Section 7314, the trial court rejected Bob’s it-is-too-late-to-object argument: “Nothing in the record suggests that [Bob’s adversary] filed its petition more than 30 days after discovering the grounds for the petition.”

Bob made one other mistake here: He failed to appeal the trial court’s order. An appeal probably would have been successful because the trial court probably blew it. The time limitation in Section 7314 (“30 days after such grounds are known or should have been known to the applicant”) seems to apply only to statutory arbitration proceedings. However, Bob was engaged in a common law proceeding. Therefore, the 30-day period to challenge the arbitration award in favor of Bob’s client started to run on the date of delivery of the award and not one day later. Bob’s adversary’s petition was untimely, and Bob did get it right.

In my next column, I will ask Bob — clad in sackcloth — to explain the differences between statutory arbitration and common law arbitration when it comes to appealing from an arbitration award. I will instruct Bob to point out the ambiguities in the statute. After Bob spills the beans, we will feel a bit better about his failure to appeal. •

Energy

Major oil and gas companies such as Talisman Energy Inc., Range Resources Corp. and Chesapeake Energy Corp. have established a presence in the region in recent years, according to Bagnell.

“That gave us a great opportunity to be here to serve these clients,” she said.

But Bagnell added that the firm considers energy to be a global issue, which is why it created the global energy and natural resources group last October, the aim of which, she said, is “to serve not only oil and gas clients but all energy clients.”

Joy, who represents oil and gas companies ranging in size from small “mom and pop” companies to some major corporations, said he looked into joining a number of Pittsburgh-area law firms of varying sizes, but decided on Reed Smith in part because the formation of the global energy group showed the firm had made a commitment to energy law.

“They’ve broken down the traditional Big Law silos,” he said.

But while Joy’s story of moving hundreds of miles away from where he had previously been practicing law may sound unique, he is far from the only lawyer who has packed up and moved to Western Pennsylvania in hopes of taking part in the energy boom.

For example, Texas-based energy firm Burleson recently brought aboard James Strawn, a former in-house counsel for Conoco Inc., Pennzoil, Windsor Energy Inc. and Devon Energy, who is set to move to the Pittsburgh region from Oklahoma City.

Kevin L. Colosimo, head of Burleson’s Washington County, Pa., office, said Strawn fits into the “significant investment” the firm has made in the Appalachian region, having signed a long-term lease in Washington County with the intention of remaining in the area permanently.

“There are folks here that have the ‘toe in the water’ sort of thing — they’ve taken a short-term lease and have put a couple of people to work,” he said. “I have 32 lawyers

[in the Washington County office] now, so we have at least a whole foot in the water.”

In September, the firm hired Ivan DeVoren, former chair of the environmental group at Philadelphia-based Kleinbard Bell & Brecker, who picked up and moved across the state to work in the firm’s Washington County office.

DeVoren told The Legal at the time that he saw going west as an opportunity to be “on the cutting edge” and to challenge himself professionally.

Shortly before that, in August, Houston-based Fulbright & Jaworski hired Janet McQuaid as an environmental law partner in its Washington County office.

McQuaid had been a partner in Fulbright exist, the insured person resumes paying premiums. We also recommend this rider.

- Return of premium riders provide that upon the death of the insured the policy owner or beneficiary will receive the total premiums paid. There are variations to this rider; however, the amount is usually returned in full, without any interest, even if benefits were paid. This rider has an intriguing application when it comes to wealth transfer. For example, one strategy is for a trust to purchase an LTCI policy with a maximum coverage indemnification benefit with the return of premium riders.

Assume for illustration that the premiums are $500,000. When the insured dies, the trust gets back the $500,000. In the event of a claim for long-term care the trust can keep the money from the carrier and the insured, who is wealthy, can reduce his or her taxable estate by paying the long-term care costs out of pocket.

TYPES OF LTCI POLICIES

There are various types of policies, including standalone indemnity, standalone reimbursement and combination product policies that should be considered when counseling a client.

- Indemnity pays “per-diem” regardless of the costs incurred. If an insured has a $200 daily benefit and only spends $150 daily, he or she still receives the $200. These types of policies are also referred to as cash policies and offer the most flexibility.

- Reimbursement pays the amount of out-of-pocket to the insured. For example, if an insured has a daily benefit of $200 and spends $150 daily, he or she is reimbursed the $150. This excess $50 dollars, in some policies, is contributed to a pool, thereby potentially extending the benefit period. The downfall to a reimbursement policy is the lack of spending freedom. Expenditures related to the policy must be documented and approved by the carrier prior to reimbursement.

- Combination products are also available such as a universal life/LTC rider. The typical buyer of a combination product has excess assets and would like to create a tax-efficient legacy. He or she has long-term care concerns but has decided against a traditional, stand-alone LTCI policy, where there is no cash value and no death benefit. A combination policy can be used to maximize the value of the insured’s legacy and help protect the value of his or her savings against the potential devastating financial impact of a long-term care event.

With a life/LTC combination contract there is a designated face amount that provides a tax-free death benefit. The addition of the LTC rider allows the life insurance contract to be accessed for living benefits by paying down the face amount when the insured qualifies for LTC benefits. There is a maximum monthly LTC benefit set forth in the contract and as benefits are paid, the cash value and death benefit are reduced accordingly.

Perhaps the most attractive feature is that most combination products contain a return of premium. If the owner cancels the contract, at any time and for any reason, the owner gets all of his or her money back (less any benefits paid). There are no surrender charges or fees. Granted, there is generally no interest or gain, but in today’s low interest rate environment, many clients have money in CDs or money markets earning less than 1 percent.

STATE PARTNERSHIP

In addition to private policies, states offer partnership policies jointly by state governments through private insurance companies. The program combines aspects of private LTCI with Medicaid extended coverage and enables the insured to protect his or her assets instead of spending all of them down to become eligible for Medicaid.

Partnership plans have certain drawbacks. The insured is generally restricted to using approved Medicaid facilities and nurses. In private policies, the insured has considerably more freedom regarding care. Once the care covered on the private policy expires, Medicaid extended coverage care must be provided within the state of origin (or the state in which the partnership has been applied).

This is often a significant issue because many people that reside, for example, in Pennsylvania, may relocate to another state (or country). Assume an insured purchased a partnership plan in State A, moved to State B and filed a claim; the private policy would pay for the coverage until the benefit period expires. In order to use the Medicaid extended coverage aspect of the policy, the insured would have to relocate to State A.

TAXATION

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 provides some tax incentives to those in the private sector that purchase LTCI. Under the act, LTCI policies that meet certain requirements may qualify for federal and state tax benefits, known as qualified LTCI policies. Policies that do not meet these specific requirements are known as non-qualified LTCI policies.

- Qualified LTCIs are eligible for tax-deductions on both premiums and benefits. Benefits received are generally not considered taxable income and premiums can be deducted in the same manner as medical expenses. These are the most common policies offered in today’s market. A tax-qualified policy requires that a person be expected to require care for at least 90 days and be unable to perform two or more ADLs without substantial assistance. A doctor must provide a plan of care.

- Non-qualified LTCI is referred to as a traditional long-term care plan and has medical necessity triggers that allow the insured’s personal doctor to decide on the status of an ADL. These policies usually only require the insured to be unable to perform one ADL. Few non-qualified plans are available in today’s market.

Some states offer tax deductions or tax credits toward the premiums for a tax-qualified LTCI policy. There may also be tax advantages where a business purchases LTCI.

According to the American Association of Long-Term Care Insurance, when a Subchapter C corporation purchases a tax-qualified LTCI policy on behalf of any of its employees (or their spouses and dependents), the corporation is entitled to take a 100 percent deduction of the premium as a business expense. The purchase of a tax-qualified LTCI policy is not subject to any non-discrimination rules, thus allowing an employer to be selective in the classification of employees it elects to cover. In addition, partners of a partnership, members of an LLC that is taxed as a partnership, and shareholders/employees of Subchapter S corporations who own more than 2 percent of the corporation, may deduct up to 100 percent of the age-based eligible premium (where the entity pays the premium and the insured pays income tax on the premium).

INTERNATIONAL COVERAGE

If an insured desires care outside of the United States, a policy may pay limited or no benefits. If you think there is a likelihood or even possibility that an insured will reside abroad, that might be the overriding factor in determining coverage.

THE BIG PICTURE

According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, about 60 percent of individuals over the age of 65 will require some type of long-term care. About 40 percent of those receiving long-term care today are between 18 and 64. Once a decline in health has occurred, LTCI may not be obtainable.

This type of insurance can protect retirement savings, ensure an inheritance for loved ones, provide security and peace of mind, be offered as an employee benefit and, for those who are financially secure who can afford to self insure, be used as a wealth transfer vehicle. For many, LTCI policies should be considered an integral component of their estate and financial plan. • in electing [officials] within the old districts,” he added.

Meanwhile, the court’s surprise decision to reject the commission’s plans made headlines after Baer made comments to the press about the matter.

Specifically, Baer’s comments to Capitolwire.com — a Web-based news service out of Harrisburg — stirred a strong GOP response that the jurist committed an ethical violation by making a public comment about a case that was “pending” before him.

According to the website’s report, Baer indicated the 2012 elections would likely follow the 2001 maps.

“I think that is what the majority intended and I think that is what a reading of the chief justice’s order said,” Baer told the news service.

The Republican party (which Levine added saw increased performance in 14 of the 19 “swing districts” under the final plan), immediately responded with a statement from Michael Barley, the executive director of the state Republican Committee.

“While the rest of Pennsylvania anxiously awaits the court’s opinion on redistricting, Justice Baer decided to provide his own commentary on the matter, violating both Judicial Canon and the Pennsylvania Constitution in the process,” Barley said in the statement. “The fact that a Pennsylvania Supreme Court judge would make politically motivated comments to the press on a pending court proceeding is absolutely outrageous, especially since the court’s official opinion on the matter has not yet been released.”

“Justice Baer’s comments are more than just an abdication of his judicial responsibilities; they are in direct contravention of both the Pennsylvania Code of Judicial Conduct and the Pennsylvania Constitution,” he added. “Justice Baer should be reprimanded for his poor judgment and recuse himself from any judicial activity related to this matter.”

Abe Reich, whose practice at Fox Rothschild focuses on ethics, said a cursory review of Baer’s comments did not seem to indicate an ethical breach.

He said the question is whether the case was “pending” before the court. And, since its order had already revealed how the justices were going to rule, albeit without a complete explanation, Reich said he didn’t see a problem with the comments.

“Had he discussed it publicly before the order was entered, I might have felt differently,” Reich said. “But once the order was entered, I think it was a different ball game.”

Reich also noted that Baer’s comments, as he understood them, did not offer much information beyond the two-page order that Baer joined.

“While we always like judges to refrain from speaking about matters pending before them, since the decision had already been made, I’m not sure his comments were particularly revealing.”

Shira Goodman, deputy director of the Pennsylvanians for Modern Courts, agreed that how one describes the word “pending” was essential in determining whether Baer had made an ethical breach.

She called it “an unusual posture” that Baer’s comments came between an order and an opinion, as the two are typically released together.

Goodman added that any judge offering a public comment about a pending case could create confusion and possibly undermine the court’s decision.

Added Levine: “Justice Baer was simply reflecting the complexity of the issues. The executive director of the Republican Party was totally out of line for stating this was a political statement.”

Lawyers for the commission, former Superior Court Judge Joseph Del Sole and William S. Stickman, did not return requests for comment.

when she left to become in-house counsel to one of the firm’s clients, Houston-based natural gas producer El Paso Corp.

She told The Legal that she saw moving from Texas to Western Pennsylvania, where she grew up, as “an exciting opportunity” because of the drilling activity currently heating up in “the tri- or quad-state area — Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and some in Kentucky.”

“And I think eventually New York will come to its senses and there will be some oil

TAX LIEN SALE CONDITIONS OF SHERIFF'S SALE

Effective: April 2000

- Ten percent of the highest bid for each property auctioned off shall be deposited in cash, certified check, attorney's check or money order with the Sheriff by each bidder when their bid is registered, provided that in no case shall less than $500.00 be deposited, otherwise upon failure or refusal to make such deposit, the bidder shall lose all benefit of the bid and the property may be immediately offered again and sold unless a second bid has been registered, then, the second bidder will take the property at the highest bid price.
- The balance of the purchase money must be deposited in cash, certified check, attorney's check or money order together with a certification from the Department of Revenue for execution by the highest bidder to the Sheriff at his office within 30 days from the date of sale. An extension of time for an additional 30 days may be granted at the discretion of the Sheriff upon written request from the buyer requesting the same, except when a second bidder has been duly registered. Also, if the first bidder does not complete settlement with the Sheriff within the thirty [30] day time limit and a second bid was registered at the sale, the second bidder shall be granted the same thirty [30] day time limit to make settlement with the Sheriff on their second bid. Thereafter, the Sheriff shall be at liberty to return the decree to the courts and the sale of said property will be marked as "Terms of Sale Not Complied."
- A second bid must be registered on any property immediately after it is sold. The second bidder must present the same amount of deposit that the highest bidder delivers to the Sheriff at the sale. An extension of time under no circumstances will be granted or honored by the Sheriff whenever a second bid is registered on a property at the sale.
- No personal checks, drafts or promises to pay will be accepted in lieu of cash, certified check, attorney's check or money order made payable to the Sheriff of Philadelphia.
- The deposit made by any bidder who fails to comply with the above conditions of sale, shall be forfeited and the funds will be applied to the Sheriff's costs, then to any municipal claims that the City of Philadelphia has on the property. Finally, if a balance still remains, a Sheriff's Distribution Policy will be ordered and the money will be distributed accordingly.
- The first bid or opening bid on each property shall be a sum sufficient to pay all Sheriff's costs, in addition to the amount of the original tax lien. Each successive bid thereafter shall be One Hundred Dollars above the last amount stated. If there is no other bid price above the opening bid price, the property shall be sold by the auctioneer to the attorney on the decree at that price.
- The Sheriff reserves the right to grant further extension of time to settle and further reserves the right to refuse bids from bidders who fail to enter deposits on their bids, failed to make settlement or make fraudulent bids or any other behavior which causes disruption of the Sheriff Sale. Said bidders shall be so refused for the sale in which said behavior occurred and for said further period of time as the Sheriff in his discretion shall determine.
- The Sheriff requires from each successful purchaser before settlement, certification from the Department of Revenue of the City of Philadelphia, that the successful purchaser is not more than one [1] year delinquent in paying real estate taxes on any properties owned by said purchaser with the City of Philadelphia, or that the purchaser is under agreement with the City of Philadelphia for repayment of any taxes due the City. The Sheriff reserves the right to waive the requirements of said certification when the said certification has been reasonably requested but has not been received.
- The Sheriff will not acknowledge a deed to any individual or entity using an unregistered fictitious name and may, at his discretion, require proof of the identity of the purchaser or the registration of a fictitious name. The bid of an unregistered fictitious name shall be forfeited as if the bidder failed to meet the terms of sale.
- All bidders are advised to remain at the sale until the last property is sold. The Sheriff reserves the right to re-sell any property at any time before the end of the sale, upon the successful bidders' failure to tender the required deposit. The Sheriff reserves the right to postpone or stay the sale of any property in which the attorney on the decree has not appeared and/or is not present at the sale.

Court Notices

Article V, 40 P.S. § 221.10). A request for judicial review of a summary order by the Commissioner shall be presented by petition for review and shall conform to the provisions of Chapter 15 of the Pennsylvania Rules of Appellate Procedure.

(b) Court Seizure Order (Section 512 of Article V, 40 P.S. § 221.12). Petitions by the Commissioner for a seizure order shall state the material facts that constitute the grounds for relief. The petition may be decided with or without an answer or a hearing. An application by the insurer for a hearing and review of an ex parte seizure order may be filed at any time and shall set forth the factual and legal basis on which the applicant believes that the Court should vacate or modify the seizure order. The Court may set a time for the Commissioner to file an answer, but in any event the Court shall decide the application in accordance with Section 512(d), 40 P.S. § 221.12(d).

(c) Formal Proceedings (Sections 515 and 520 of Article V, 40 P.S. §§ 221.15 and 221.20).

(1) Petitions by the Commissioner for an order of rehabilitation or liquidation shall state the material facts that constitute the grounds for relief.

(2) Within thirty (30) days of the filing of a petition for rehabilitation or a petition for liquidation, the insurer shall file either an answer to the petition or consent to the entry of an order granting the relief the Commissioner seeks in the petition. No other responsive filings by the insurer are permitted. The time period for responding to the petition may be extended by the Court for good cause shown.

(3) An answer shall state the material facts that constitute a defense to the petition.

(4) Following the entry of an order to rehabilitate or liquidate the business of an insurer, the Court may enter a case management order to supplement these Rules.

Rule 3775. Intervention in Formal Proceedings

(a) Intervention. A person not named as a respondent in a formal proceeding who has a direct and substantial interest in the administration of the insurer's business or the estate may request leave of court to intervene.

(b) Application to Intervene. A request for leave to intervene, generally or for a limited purpose, shall be by application and answer, if any, in accordance with Pa. R.A.P. 123. The application shall contain a concise statement of the interest of the applicant and the purposes for which the applicant seeks to intervene. A copy of the document to be filed if the Court allows intervention shall be attached to the application.

(c) Action on Application. Intervention in a formal proceeding shall be allowed if the proven or admitted allegations of the petition establish a sufficient interest in the proceedings, unless the interest of the applicant is already adequately represented or intervention will unduly delay or prejudice the adjudication of the rights of the parties.

(1) General Intervention. Where the applicant demonstrates an ongoing interest in the administration of the insurer's business or estate, the Court may grant the applicant general intervention. The general intervenor shall remain on the master service list until the formal proceeding is completed.

(2) Limited Intervention. Where the applicant's interest involves a discrete controversy relating to the administration of the insurer's business or estate, the Court may grant the applicant limited intervention to participate as a party in the discrete controversy. The limited intervenor shall not be placed upon the master service list unless otherwise directed by the Court.

(d) Upon grant of an application to intervene, the attached application under Rule 3776 or complaint under Rule 3783 shall be deemed filed, and the Court shall direct the time for filing a response.

NOTE: General or limited intervention – Intervention, whether general or limited in scope, may be granted for purposes such as, but not limited to, the following:

- (1) Oppose a petition by the Commissioner for an order of liquidation or rehabilitation;
- (2) Oppose a request by the receiver for a court order relating to the administration of the insurer's business or of the estate;
- (3) Object to a report to the Court by the receiver;
- (4) Seek relief from any order of the Court;
- (5) Assert any rights or interest afforded to the person by Article V and for which neither Article V nor prior orders of the Court provide an avenue for redress; or
- (6) Compel the liquidator to issue a notice of determination if the liquidator has failed to do so in conformity with Rule 3780.

Relief from stay – An application to intervene is the appropriate filing in which to request relief from the stay of actions against the insurer that is imposed under Section 526, 40 P.S. § 221.26.

Rule 3776. Applications for Relief or Court Approval

An application for relief shall comply with Pa R.A.P. 123, except that an answer shall be filed within thirty (30) days of service of the application for relief. Upon application, the Court may extend the time for response. The application may be supported by a memorandum of law; any answer may likewise be accompanied by a memorandum of law.

NOTE: Extension of time for response – Requests based on an agreement of the parties are more likely to receive favorable consideration.

Rule 3777. Docketing

(a) Administrative Case Docket. Upon the filing of a petition to rehabilitate or liquidate an insurance company under Article V, the chief clerk shall assign the petition a number on the administrative case docket. All filings directly related to the Court's consideration of the petition for rehabilitation or liquidation shall be filed at that number, and this docket will contain all filings concerning the administration of the insurer's estate should the petition be granted.

(b) Case Caption – Administrative Case Docket. The caption of the proceeding assigned to an administrative case docket shall be in the following form:

Rule 3778. Master Service List

(a) General Rule. As soon as practicable after commencing an action to rehabilitate or liquidate an insurer, the Commissioner shall create and maintain a master service list. If the Court grants the petition to liquidate or rehabilitate, the receiver will assume the duty to maintain the master service list. The master service list shall include (a) the name, address, telephone number, facsimile (fax) number and electronic mail (e-mail) address of counsel for each party in the proceeding, and (b) the name, address, telephone number, fax number and e-mail address of each pro se party in the proceeding at the administrative case docket number.

The receiver is not required to list a party or counsel for a party participating only as a limited intervenor on the master service list.

Changes in contact information, including transfer of responsibilities to another attorney in the firm and requests to be removed from the master service list may be accomplished by notifying the receiver by e-mail, fax or mail in accordance with the receiver's instructions.

(b) Request of Non-Party for Inclusion on Master Service List. Any interested person may be included on the master service list by sending a written request to the Commissioner or the receiver, as the case may be, including name, address, telephone number, facsimile (fax) number and electronic mail (e-mail) address.

(c) Availability of Master Service List. The Commissioner, or receiver, shall post and maintain the master service list on the website established under these rules. If no website has been established, the receiver shall make the master service list available by e-mail upon request. The receiver may make a paper copy of the master service list available at the standard fee.

NOTE: Court Maintains Its Own Service List - The master service list maintained by the Commissioner or receiver is not the Court's service list. The two lists are separately managed. Amendment or deletion of information on one list does not affect the other list. Notice of any change must be given to both the Commissioner or receiver and the Court.

Rule 3779. Website

Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, upon commencing an action to rehabilitate or liquidate an insurer, the Commissioner shall establish and maintain a website for the purpose of either posting or listing filings with and orders of the Court in accordance with these rules. If the Court grants the petition to liquidate or rehabilitate, the receiver will assume the duty to maintain the website. On the website, the receiver shall post in PDF format all documents filed at the administrative case docket number.

After the chief clerk assigns an ancillary case docket number to a disputed matter, the receiver shall note on the website the initiation of the ancillary case, stating briefly the nature of the dispute and the docket number assigned thereto. The receiver is not required to post a copy of filings at an ancillary case docket number.

When a copy of a filing is not required to be posted on the website, the receiver may list the filing without posting a copy.

Rule 3780. Service

(a) Administrative Case Docket.

(1) Service on all parties. Service of all documents filed by any party (receiver, insurance company, general intervenors) at the administrative case docket number shall be served on all other parties in accordance with Pa. R.A.P. 121. Proof of service shall comply with Pa. R.A.P. 122.

(2) Notice to non-parties listed on the master service list. The receiver shall promptly notify all non-parties named on the master service list of any filing at the administrative case docket number by transmitting via facsimile (fax) or electronic mail (e-mail) a notice to each such person that the filing has been posted on the website. The notice shall include:

- (i) The title or description of the filing;
- (ii) The date of the filing;
- (iii) A statement that the filing is available for viewing, downloading, or printing at the website;
- (iv) Directions on how interested persons may view, download, or print a copy of the filing from the website;
- (v) A name, address, telephone number, fax number, and e-mail address as a contact for those unable to view, download, or print the filing from the website.

Notification is deemed complete upon transmission of the notice of filing by e-mail or when the fax transmission is complete. If the notice of filing is transmitted by fax, the receiver shall also comply with the requirements of Pa. R.C.P. No. 440(d)(2), relating to a fax cover sheet.

(b) Ancillary Case Docket. Service of all documents filed by a party at an ancillary case docket number shall be served on all other parties in accordance with Pa. R.A.P. 121. Proof of service shall comply with Pa. R.A.P. 122.

(c) Filings Not Posted on Website. Any person on the master service list desiring a copy of a filing listed, but not posted, on the website may obtain a copy from the receiver.

(d) Alternative Service. If a person listed on the master service list is unable to receive electronic notice of filings, written notice of this inability shall be sent to the receiver who shall then provide notice of a filing by ordinary mail.

(e) Notice of the Entry of Court Orders. The chief clerk shall give written notice of the entry of a Court order to counsel of record or any party if not represented in disputes at either the administrative case docket number or at an ancillary case docket number, as the case may be. Such notice shall be given in accordance with Pa. R.C.P. No. 236.

The Commissioner or receiver, as the case may be, shall post on the website all orders issued by the Court and shall provide notice of the filing of the order to non-parties listed on the master service list in conformity with subsection (a)(2) of this rule unless otherwise ordered by the Court.

Rule 3781. Claim Procedure in Liquidation Proceedings

(a) Filing a Proof of Claim.

- (1) In the notice to potential creditors of the insurer's estate, the liquidator shall provide a proof of claim form that complies with Article V.
- (2) A creditor asserting a monetary claim against the estate of the insurer shall file a proof of claim with the liquidator in accordance with Article V.
- (3) The completed proof of claim form and documentation supporting the claim shall be filed with the liquidator. Filing may be accomplished by mail, facsimile (fax), or electronic mail (e-mail) to the addresses and numbers indicated on the proof of claim form. Filing is effective upon the date on which the proof of claim form is mailed, as established by a United Postal Service Form 3817 Certificate of Mailing or by any similar form from which the date of deposit in the mail can be verified. If faxed or e-mailed to the liquidator, filing is effective upon the date faxed or e-mailed, as documented by sender's fax or computer. If service is accomplished by fax, the claimant shall also comply with the requirements of Pa. R.C.P. No. 440(d)(2), relating to a fax cover sheet.

(b) Notice of Determination.

- (1) Unless otherwise ordered, the liquidator shall issue a written notice of determination within one hundred and eighty (180) days of the filing of the proof of claim, unless the liquidator seeks additional information on a claim pursuant to Section 538(b), 40 P.S. § 221.38(b). If additional information is required, the liquidator shall issue a notice of determination within ninety (90) days of the date on which the requested supplementary information is mailed, faxed or e-mailed to the liquidator.
- (2) The notice of determination shall include:
  - (i) the amount of the claim allowed;
  - (ii) the priority class assigned to the claim;
  - (iii) if the claim is disallowed, in whole or in part, a brief statement of the reason(s) for the liquidator's determination;
  - (iv) a statement advising the claimant of the requirements set forth in Rule 3781(c)(1) below; and
  - (v) notice that if a claimant fails to file an objection with the Commonwealth Court within sixty (60) days from the mailing date on the notice of determination, the claimant cannot later object to the liquidator's determination.
- (3) If the liquidator determines that the claim has been submitted to a state guaranty association, the liquidator may defer further review of the proof of claim until the guaranty association has made its final determination and has returned the closed claim file to the liquidator. In such a case, the liquidator shall notify the claimant of the decision to defer review.

(c) Objections.

(1) If a claimant disputes the amount or priority class assigned to the claim, the claimant shall file an objection in the Court within sixty (60) days from the mailing date shown on the notice of determination. The objection must present the factual and legal basis for the objection and include relevant supporting documentation and a copy of the notice of determination.

(2) The claimant shall serve a copy of the objection on the liquidator in accordance with Pa. R.A.P. 121.

(3) Upon receipt of an objection, the liquidator shall promptly acknowledge receipt, contact the claimant and attempt to resolve the objection. If the objection is not resolved within sixty (60) days, the liquidator shall file with the Court and serve on the claimant a written response. The claimant and the liquidator may agree in writing to extend these deadlines. Any such agreement must be filed with the Court.

(4) If the claimant is an entity other than a natural person, an attorney admitted to practice in Pennsylvania or admitted to practice pro hac vice in accordance with Pa. R.C.P. No. 1012.1, Pa. B.A.R. 301, and 204 Pa. Code § 81.505, must enter an appearance for the claimant within sixty (60) days of the filing of the objection, or the Court may dismiss the objection.

(d) Resolution of Objections.

(1) Upon receipt of the liquidator's response to the objection, the Court shall establish a time for a hearing.

(2) Objections may be assigned to a single judge for disposition.

(3) Upon the parties' request or on its own initiative, the Court may appoint a referee to hear the objection and submit to the Court a recommended decision, which shall include findings of fact, conclusions of law and a proposed order.

(e) Referee Procedure.

(1) Compensation. Referees serve at the pleasure of the Court and shall be compensated from the insurer's estate at an hourly rate to be set by the Court at the beginning of each calendar year. The rate shall be clearly set forth in the appointment order, subject to any annual adjustment, which shall be posted on the website created under Rule 3776 and on the Court's website.

(2) Parties' costs. Each party shall bear its own costs associated with proceedings before the referee. The parties shall share equally any costs incurred by the referee in creating a record and any transcription costs.

(3) Conflict of interest. No referee may appear as counsel in connection with any matter connected to the liquidation proceeding.

(4) Authority of the referee. The referee shall have authority to:

- (i) set hearing dates;
- (ii) establish procedures to expedite the presentation of evidence;
- (iii) establish discovery schedules where discovery is necessary; and
- (iv) establish briefing schedules.

(5) Rules of evidence. The Pennsylvania Rules of Evidence shall apply to all evidentiary hearings conducted by a referee.

(6) Additional evidence. The referee shall review the objection and any response and may request and review additional documents or information.

(7) Efficient and cost effective. The referee shall resolve the objection in a cost-effective and efficient manner, using stipulations and depositions and conducting hearings by teleconference or videoconference where appropriate. The referee may bifurcate a proceeding to address issues seriatim.

(8) Maintain a record. The referee shall maintain a record consisting of everything submitted for consideration. The referee shall also maintain a list of the contents of the record, numbered and maintained in the order in which the items were submitted. In the case of materials submitted as evidence, the referee shall mark each exhibit offered into evidence as admitted or excluded. While an objection is pending before a referee, no documents or other material related to that objection shall be filed with the Court.

(9) Filing recommended decision. The referee shall file with the Court and serve on the parties the recommended decision, a proposed order and a certified list of all documents submitted by the parties and compiled in accordance with Rule 3781(e)(8).

(10) Failure to cooperate with referee. If a claimant or the liquidator fails to cooperate with the referee or to participate in good faith in proceedings before the referee, the referee may include such findings in his recommended decision and recommend appropriate sanctions, which may include a recommendation that the objection be sustained or dismissed.

(f) Exceptions to the Referee's Recommended Decision.

(1) Either the liquidator or the claimant may file with the Court exceptions to the referee's recommended decision no later than thirty (30) days after service of the recommended decision. The exceptions shall be served on the other party and the referee.

(2) In separately numbered paragraphs, the exceptions shall specify the errors in the referee's recommended decision. There shall be attached as exhibits to the exceptions: the liquidator's notice of determination; the objection; the liquidator's response; and, the referee's recommended decision. Exceptions shall be accompanied by a memorandum of law.

(3) Any response to the exceptions shall be filed and served on the other party and the referee within fourteen (14) days of service of the exceptions. A response shall be accompanied by a memorandum of law. The time for response may be extended by agreement of the parties with the approval of the Court.

(4) Within fourteen (14) days of service of the exceptions, the referee shall forward to the Court the record of the proceedings.

(5) When exceptions are filed, the Court may, on its own motion or upon request, direct an evidentiary hearing or oral argument. The Court may adopt the referee's proposed factual findings, modify those findings or recommit the matter to the referee with instructions.

(6) Upon completion of its review of the exceptions, the Court will enter a final order sustaining or overruling the exceptions, in part or in whole. The Court may adopt the referee's recommended decision or may issue its own opinion and order. An order of Court dismissing an objection as a sanction pursuant to Rule 3781(e)(10) is the final disposition of the claim.

(7) When no exceptions to a referee's recommended decision are filed, the referee, within fourteen (14) days of the last day for filing exceptions, shall file with the Court the record of the proceedings. Thereafter, either the claimant or the liquidator may apply to the Court for, or the Court on its own initiative may issue, an order either adopting the recommended decision or stating that in the absence of exceptions, the referee's proposed order is entered as the order of the Court.

(8) When no exceptions are filed, findings of fact or conclusions of law in a referee's report and the recommended decision are not considered controlling in any subsequent proceeding, unless the Court adopts the entire report or specific findings of fact or conclusions of law.

(9) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, failure to file timely exceptions to a referee's recommended decision shall be deemed a waiver of further appeal if the Court approves the recommended decision without modification.

Rule 3782. Claim Procedure in Rehabilitation Proceedings

When an approved plan of rehabilitation includes the filing of claims by creditors, the rehabilitation plan shall follow the claim procedures set forth in Rule 3781, unless modified by the Court.

Rule 3783. Adversarial Proceedings

(a) Manner of Initiating Adversarial Proceedings. Adversarial proceedings, whether filed by the receiver or filed by an intervenor, shall be initiated by the filing of a complaint.

(b) Rules Governing Adversarial Proceedings. Unless otherwise directed by the Court, the Pennsylvania Rules of Civil Procedure shall apply.

(c) Appointment of Referee. The Court may appoint a referee to hear the complaint and make recommended findings of fact and conclusions of law and propose an order for review by the Court in the same manner and pursuant to the same procedure prescribed for the disposition of objections to a notice of determination. The Court shall determine if the referee's fee shall be paid by the estate, the claimant or apportioned between the parties.

Rule 3784. Reporting

(a) At least annually, the liquidator shall prepare and submit to the Court a report of the claims against the insurer's estate that have been resolved, with his recommendations ("Claims Report").
